Other Swiss news of interest is the finding of another lake-village, near Neuchatel. Several millstones, quite new, others half made, have been brought to light; from which it is inferred that the places may have been the seat of a manufactory of these articles. Another conclusion drawn from this find, is, that Swiss pile-buildings served as actual dwellings for the primeval inhabitants of the land; and were not as has been supposed, used merely as storehouses,

-The Church and Stage Guild, in London, has been discussing the subject of the representation of drunkenness on the Stage. The general conclusion was that it was a powerful way of showing the horrors of intemperance; but it has always seemed to us, as if it made more merriment, than it taught temperance. The Rev. Mr. Horsley read a paper on the subject, and commended the example of Shakespere, who always held drunkenness up to blame. He them took up the play of "Drink," about which so much has been said "pro and con," and remarked, that, on two classes, it was inconceivable to him that its effects would not be lasting and profound. First, those who could not but be conscious that the awful end of the drunkard, might, in no remote time, be their own; and, secondly, those engaged for the sake of others in active temperance works, who refused to echo the voice either of Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" or of the priests, with Judas, "What is that to us?" Having also referred to the good effects produced by "Rip van Winkle," Mr. Horsley, on the conclusion of his paper, asked those of his audience who were ac- home." -That queer old violinist-Ole Bull-had grand funeral in Norway. He died at a chateau hich he had built on a little island, about twenty miles from Bergen. In the magnificent music hall, his body lay in state, surrounded by trophies of his long life—a gold service from the Emperor Nicholas, of Russia, a silver music stand from the students of St. Petersburg, a crown of diamonds and pearls from California, Orders and Decorations from all the kings and queens of Europe, pictures and treasures of all kinds. The King sent telegrams of condolence aspiration "Give me neither poverty nor riches," to his family; and the government ordered a large a modest, gentlemanly mode of life, a life free steamer to the island, for the convenience of those who wished to pay their last tribute of respect. When the day for burial came, the government again sent a steamer, to bring the re- the country; but very few of them have been mains to Bergen; and fourteen other steamers. all draped in mourning, with flags at half mast, to escort it. The body was borne to the boat by the peasants on the estate, and the cortege proceeded to the city. When the landing was reached, the remains were transferred to a funeral-car drawn by four splendid horses, and all the musical societies joined the immense procession, which. preceded by sixteen young girls clad in mourning, moved forward to the sound of Chopin's Funeral March, the tolling of the bells, and the booming of the minute guns from the two fortresses that guard the entrance to the harbor. All business in the city was suspended; shops, banks, and all public offices were closed, and all the way from the landing-place to the cemetery (a distance of three miles,) the houses were draped in mourning, and the street was strewn with flowers and evergreens.

-Some very sensible words have been said about the "palaces" in which the English Bishops live. Very many of them are buried in the country, far away from trains and towns; and the clergy are practically debarred from personal in- living Churchmen, and of the voluntary zeal of terviews with their Bishops. When Dr. Selwyn was made Bishop of Lichfield, he found that he was expected to go and live out in the country, somewhere; but he said, sturdily, "Lichfield is where I ought to live, and where I mean to live." And live there he did. His successor took the same stand; and at last, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have sold the inconvenient countryhouse. Can the dissent in Wales be wondered at, when the great men who have successively church, or endows a priest, his donation is made filled the See of St. David's, are buried in the country; and such towns as Swansea, with some hundred thousand inhabitants, have about one of it, as it pleases, In a word, the claim of the sleepy Church service in the Welsh language, for polysyllabic baronet is put forward, in respect of every twenty such services held by the Dissenters. The Bishop of St. David's, preaching Welsh sermons in Swansea, would stimulate the parochial clergy and the laity to provide for the Welsh speaking people, so that they need not be driven out of their own churches, by the unknown fered to Churchmen (and they are, after all, a tongue prevalent in them. And, did space per- majority of the population), would be avoided mit, the great loss to souls, especially in large towns, when no Bishop resides in them, and in for the purposes of religion, whereas any dirty country districts, when the Bishop is not near little sect may create endowments at its pleasure some focus of roads, might be illustrated from (for that is what it comes to), is really intoleraother country palaces. Church and State. From our English Correspondent.

LONDON, Sept. 29, 1880.

This year, I have paid a holiday visit to Bournemouth, which is, I think, the very prettiest sea-side place that I have yet seen; and which has just gone through an ecclesiastical experience, unprecedented (I would fain hope) in Originally, Bournemouth could not even boast of being a parish; it was a mere chapelry in the parish of Christ Church. It had a tumble-down old Church edifice; and an ecclesiastical income, equivalent to two hundred and fifty dollars. In 1845, it fell into the hands of the Rev. A. M. Bennett, who pulled down the old church, and substituted for it one of the largest and handsomest that have been built since the Revival. He also built a chapel-of-ease. What amount he, short of $500,000. Yet, when this good man died, the patrons, whose right accrues from the fact that he represents the original founder, with his polysyllabic style of "Sir George Eliott Meyrick Tupps-Gervis-Meyrick, Baronet), steps in, waves aside the infinitely larger claim of the second founder; and, in spite of almost frantic protests on the part of a large and united congregation, insists on appointing Bishop Ryan, formerly of Mauritius, "a returned empty," as this kind of prelate is called. Which thing is an allegory.

I dare say, that American Churchmen, when struggling with the difficulties that surround them, are often inclined to envy the Church "at that the idea of the Church of England, which has replenished the land, and subdued it; that every inch of territory is under the effective pastoral care of somebody; that, every-where, there is a church for every-one; and that the parishpriest lives close by, in a parsonage hung with roses and jasamine, standing in the prettiest conceivable garden, as charming as the surroundings, and as comfortable as it is charming. I dare say you think that the piety of our forefathers has placed out of reach all such troubles as those which "Vestryman" so very pathetically bewails, in your impression of the 9th ultimo; and that the lot of the English parson is a realization of the Never was there a greater delusion. We have plenty of these idyllic parsonages, up and down built, or are kept up, with the money of the pious ancestor. In fact, the church at Bournemouth is but a picture, in little, of the Church throughout the country. Of the ancient buildings, a very large number have been actually re-built; and there are, now, very few, on which as much has not been expended in restoration or adornment, as would supply an equal number of sittings, a $25 each. That is about the amount that is spent by respectable dissenting denominations, upon the provision that they make for public worship. And then, as to income, there are, doubtless, few ancient benefices, of decent amount; but, the most liberal computation of the old endowments of the Church, is not above $10,000,000 a year, and as there are, at least, 20,000 beneficed or licensed clergymen, you may judge how far they are provided for, by the pious ancestor. Further: experience has shown, that the amount of pastoral work that is exigible by law, is utterly useless for any purpose whatever. Hence it follows, that the Church-life of the present day is as much the result of the voluntary liberality of living priests, as the Church-life of America itself can be.

But now comes the monstrous wrong. Because this fine rose has been grafted upon the ugly stock of Establishment (which has, from the first, been a mere synonym for every kind of abuse), our politicians coolly tell us, that we have no rights at all. The Liberationist organs have said, in so many words, that if a Churchman builds a to the State; and that parliament has a perfect right to step in, even in his life-time, and dispose the whole property of the Church. If the claim were to go a little further, and extend to all places of worship, and to property kept for their sustentation, its injustice would not, of course, be cured: but the intolerable affront that is of-To say, that we are incapable of settling property

In fact, so far from being the "Established" Church, it would be far truer to say, that the Church of England is the "Plundered" or the "Enslaved" church: and (what is the bitterest ingredient in the dose of humiliation) all this was brought upon us by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and half of

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. 1880.

Tuesday, the day before the meeting of the Convention, was dreary enough, as the Deputies disembarked at the various depots, and wended their way to the headquarters of the Committee of Entertainment. Many a new silk hat was ruined in the drizzling min, and no hope of another for three years to come. It had been made evident, beforehand, by the invitations, which were sent out to the dishops and Deputies, that New York was not wer eager to receive them; and nature seemed to sympathize with the gard to the entertainme the Diocese of New York. Wednesday, the day of meeting, brought a clear sky; and, it is to be hoped, dispelled the clouds of dissatisfaction that had been engendered by the vexed question of Entertainment. The Deputies began to gather around old St. George's Church, an hour before the Service, with smiling faces and hearty handshakings; and many were the happy recognitions of old the Bishops alighted from their carriages, they were thronged by clergy and laity, who recognized, in one and another, the friend and pastor of other days. It was affecting to see with what devotion dear old Bishop Green was met by a clergyman to whom he had been as a father in eyes, "and he is as true as steel." Many were the Timothys that found there the aged Paul, their father in the Faith.

As the throng increased, the study of character became more interesting and varied. The laymen were evidently men of business; and, not a few, men of work. They seemed to be less social than the clergy; and I could not but form the opinion, that the habits and life of our business-men are calculated to induce reserve, and foster a reticence and a "taking of thought," that in a great measure unfits than for the enjoyment of social life.

Among the clergy, every variety was represent ed. There was the "robust" clergyman from the large diocese, with an important air and a lordly bearing, and there was the meek and unassuming Deputy from the "Pocket Diocese: the city Rector, in elegant broad-cloth and shining shoes; and the country parson jaded by the long journey, and somewhat out of and the lean asetic, with prominent nose, and hollow eyes, and suuken cheek. That man is a Priest, good service for the Church. Then, too, there is a bilious-looking student, vaguely regarding the Bishops and Deputies, as they pass; and, doubtless, dreaming of Ecumenical Councils, and Apostalic Succession.

It was a most unseemly spectacle; and, with the crash and roar of the organ, was a most gift to the Church of living donors; whereas their unfitting preparation for the solemn service that Council. There was another feature of the ence. At short intervals, people appeared in the Chancel, gazing over the congregation, as if looking for seats. They flitted out and in, through the door leading to the vestry-room; wandered about the holy place; and passed around the Altar, with the familiarity of actors behind the Scenes. I know that you do not wish your Correspondents to find fault, and do not open your columns to needless criticism. But it seems to me, that, such a violation of good taste, to call it by no worse name, ought not to go unnoticed.

As the Bishops came up the aisle, the choir started the Processional Hymn, and the great congregation joined. The aged Presiding Bishop, supported by the Primus of Scotland, led the way through the opened ranks; then came the distinguished guest of the Convention, the Old Catholic Bishop of Switzerland, vested with embroidered cope, followed by the prelates of our Church in the order of their Consecration. Of the service, I need not speak in detail, as this has been assigned to another Correspondent. I cannot, however, refrain from expressing the hope, that the services of our General Convention will, hereafter, be directed by a competent Committee, and be prepared and published for the use of the Convention. Far be it from me to criticise the Services of this old parish-church, as they are rendered on the Lord's Day for the edification of the people. But there is no reason feeling that was supposed to prevail in the Church circles of the met poolis. Your Correspondent cannot ascertain the exact facts in rethe service, and not the parish or the parish nnot do unbitious to distinguish their operation, this without due provision; and, in the abo in the way of hospitality, but will do what it of such provision, the parish should have the

The sermon, by the scholarly Bishop of California, was short and practical. He took his text from Jeremiah 8:11, "Peace, peace, but there is no peace." His theme was, that true religion pay no attention to and grace, without a struggle. The Church wa once persecuted; and this changed condition is fraught with danger. The easy way is now sought and followed. The characteristics of this popular religion are, first-Absence of Spiritual earnestness. The intense earnestness of the Apostles and primitive Christians was graphically portrayed. But now "Conversion" is thought to include it all, in the popular mind. The preacher entered a strong protest against the common friends, on the side-walk, and in the porch. It neglect of parents and sponsers, in failing to was a scene to study and to rejoice over. As train the children. Too often, they are left to the influence of a chance conversion, in the expectation that in an instant of whirlwind-agitation they may be changed from sinners to Saints. Second; The absence of a profound spirit of repentance, such as we find in the Saints of old. In place of this, there is a gentle regret for sin. years gone by. "I was baptized and confirmed and a weak excusing of it, on the ground of the and ordained by Bishop Green," said the young infirmities of our nature. It is sickly and superinfirmities of our nature. It is sickly and superman, with tears of happy remembrance in his ificial. Third; The absence of self-denial. The freedom of the Gospel is a favorite theme. Faith is made to take the place of sacrifice, But it was not so of old. Faith and works were joined, as in the building of the grand cathedrals.

The Holy Communion was celebrated; the Presiding Bishop being the Celebrant. Many rejoiced, and were comforted, to hear that voice so long familiar, speaking with such distinctness the solemn words of Consecration. A large number received. 'At the close of the Service. the members of the Convention went, by invitation of the Rector and Vestry, to the Sunday-School room in the adjoining Chapel, where a liberal lunch was served. .

The Convention met for organization, at four o'clock, at the Church of the Hely Trinity, near the Central Depot. Aside from the noise of a busy locality, the place seems to have been admirably chosen, and the church is well adapted to the needs of the Convention. Of course, repair; the well-fed and spherical conservative; in a building large enough for such an assembly. an effort must be made by all speakers, to be distinctly heard. If some fail to be heard and that one a preacher; each, in his way doing from, I believe it will not be the fault of the church.

The first vote for President counted 269. Necessary to a choice, 135. Of these, beside some scattering votes, Dr. Schenck, of Brooklyn, received 41; Dr. Van Deusen, of Central Before the hour for Service, the large church New York, 62; Dr. Dix, of New York, 79; Dr. is comfortably filled; and the great organ im- Beardsley, of Connecticut, 85. Dr. Beardsley is widely known and honored in the Church. He is said to have the business and executive ability that are required for the office: and it is predicted that he will be independent and impartial in his rulings. This he pledged himself to, in the graceful speech with which he indicated his acceptance of the duties of his high and responsible position.

> The nomination, by Chancellor Judd, of Illinois, of Dr. Dix, was handsomely done; and the vote given to him is considered to indicate a great advance in liberality and Churchly sentiment, over that which was manifest in the session of six years ago. It is evident that the present Convention will be controlled by no narrow and partisan spirit, and that its actions will tend to promote the progress of the Church on Churchly lines.

> On Thursday, the second day, various Memorials and Resolutions were presented, and referred to the proper Committees. I note here. as indicating some of the topics likely to engage the attention of the House, the motion of Dr. Norton of Virginia, requesting the Committee on Canons to enquire into the reported action of the Bishops, in deposing the late Bishop of Michigan. From the spirit of the House, it was evident that this subject will be summarily disposed of, should it ever come back from the Committee. A memorial from the Convocation of the Missionary District of Arizona and New Mexico, (introduced by an eloquent speech by Hon. Bradford Prince), with a Resolution asking the House of Bishops to nominate a Bishop for that District was acted on favorably, and without delay. A memorial was received from Dakota, asking to be erected into a diocese. There are now, in the Territory, 12 clergy, 30 parishes and stations, and 500 communicants. Dr. Craik offered Resolutions, to change the time of meeting of the Convention, from once in three years, to once in five years; and to reduce the representation from four Deputies of each Order, to two. A Deputy from Pennsylvania moved to have the subject of representation considered by the Committee; and recomended that it be appointed according to the number of communicants in each diocese. Dr. Hanckel, of Virginia, presented the action of the last Convention of that diocese in favor of an Assistant-

> The Secretary announced, that the Rector (Rev. Dr. Tyng, Jr.) and the vestry had invited the Deputies to a daily lunch during the session of the Convention. This was the first intimation that the Deputies had received of the generous provision, and it was received with general favor. As the LIVING CHURCH received no card, your Reporter cannot speak of the proceedings in the lunch-room. It was strictly a secret session; and it is to be hoped it was a success. I may be able to make out, for my next letter, an accurate Bill of Fare, as the items come in from

> The afternoon was mostly occupied in receiving distinguished visitors. Bishop Cotterill, Primus of Scotland, was introduced as the first Scottish Bishop that had visited America. My Lord is a noble looking man, and speaks gracefully. His iron grey side-whiskers, florid complexion, and sturdy frame, showed that Episcopacy in Scotland is not on the wane. He complimented the House, and the Church that it represented: and said, that-in many things-especially in organized union of clergy and laity in Church work and legislation, it realized, more fully than had been elsewhere realized, the ideal of the Catholic Church. Bishop Herzog was then introduced, and made a speech in German. It was beautiful for sound, but not easy to be "understanded of the people." The Swiss Bishop is not imposing in appearance. He is rather small and spare; but he speaks with great fluency and power, and carries himself with dignity. He seems to be a great favorite here. Next came the Delegation from Canada; several clergymen and laymen. The President, in introducing them, gave them a sly caution to be brief. To this, however, they appeared to pay little heed. Their speeches were very interesting, and were listened to with great attention. Dr. Hill, the first speaker, dwelt upon the great changes that had been wrought during the century, in the Church of this great nation; and urged, that both in the Old country and in the New-the Church should strive to become the house of the people, and not exclusively of the aristocracy. The great speech of the day was Dr. Sullivan's, formerly Rector of Trinity, Chicago. He confessed to being a deserter from our ranks; had come to serve a writ of attachment from Canada, on the whole American Church; announced, that freetrade and reciprocity had been declared between the two branches of the Church; acknowledged the indebtedness of the Canadian Church to Forty-first Annual Convention.

This body met in St. George's Church, St. Louis, on Tuesday, the 28th ult., under the presidency of the Bishop of the Diocese. The Bishep of Michigan was present in the Chancel. After Morning Prayer, and a sermon by the Rev. F. B. Sheetz, there was a Celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

The Convention was called to order about 1:15, P. M., when thirty-two of the clergy, besides the Bishop, answered to their names, and twentyas Secretary. In the course of his Address, the Bishop remarked, that although the past year quainted with the Church questions, we cannot had been one of marked gain for the diocese, it be always sure that we have been put in possesyet had but little to boast of. But, at the same time, there was very much for which they might thank God that He had enabled them to accomplish. He greatly lamented the serious want of clergy, and especially in the city, where, he said, there had not been a single new parish begun during the past eight years. He congratulated the diocese upon the great progress that had been made, throughout it, in the reduction of debt on parishes; referring especially to Christ subject in question, as to retard its Spiritual gation of work, in view of the material with Church, St. Louis, the condition of which had occasioned the deepest anxiety. "The relief, then," he ad led, "arising from a knowledge of the strikes us very forcibly, that of the apparent ina- the brass, and the iron, there is no number. fact that the entire amount of the debt has been subscribed, and that the greater part of the sum has been paid; and that, please God, the debt, before we meet again, will be wholly removed, is correspondingly great. The intelligence from St. John's and the Holy Communion was equally encou ag ng. Trinity, too, had been steadily reducing the amount of its debt, and St. George's was entirely free. And so, also, throughout the entire Diocese, there had been a great reduction of pecuniary obligations.

The total value of Church property in the diocese, at the present moment, is $936, 325, of which $669,000 is in the City St. Louis. On this property, there is an indebtedness of about $50,000. The present number of clergy connected with the diocese (55) is larger than it has ever been.

In the course of the day's proceedings, notice was given, by the Rev. Mr. Robert, of a motion, Creed" in this way, are certainly acting very, very to change the time of holding the Convention, from September, to the first Monday in May. The same gentleman also introduced a Resolution, looking to a repeal of Subsection 4, Section 2, Cannon 11, Title 2, of the Digest. It provided "that the clerical and lay deputies of this diocese be instructed to use every effort to secure the repeal of the section mentioned," and was carried.

Quite an excitement was created, during this day's session, by the introduction, by the Rev. T. M. Thorpe, of Nevada, of the following Resolutions: Resolved, that the Rt. Rev. Charles F. Robertson, D. D., the clergy and the laity of the diocese of Missouri of the American Catholic Church, in Convention assembled, do hereby send fraternal greetings to the Rt. Rev. Edward Herzog, Christian Catholic Bishop of Switzer- all members of His Body might be one, even as land, and to their brethren, the clergy and laity He and the Father are One; and of his pastoral care.

Resolved, That the Secretary be hereby retion to the Rt. Rev. Bishop and clergy.

"Then shricked the timid, and stood still the brave.

Gentlemen were scandalized at the idea that "this Church" should be, in any way whatever, identified with the "Catholic" Church. One clerical member said that he never in his life heard of the "American Catholic Church;" that the members should call themselves what they were, "the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The mover of the Resolution—the gentleman who had thrown all the fat into the fire, stirred. still further, the seething elements of confusion by his rejoiner.

"Double, double toil and trouble; "Fire! burn; and caldron bubble.

The name "Protestant Episcopal", he said, "was simply a name given by the heathen; that no Cannon used that form of expression, and it was not right or proper to use it. This is an American and a Catholic Convention, and what are the members but American Catholics?" Another reverend gentleman suggested, as a substitute-"the Church of God in the diocese of Missouri." One layman said-"We are not the Catholic Church, and I hope to God we never will be. The world does not give us that name, and it knows we are not so. We have protested against wrong, and we are Protestant Episeopalians. If we are to be called Catholic, I will take my hat and walk out of this Convention," and another declared, that though he favored the resolution, if the words "American Catholic" must go on, he could never reconcile himself to vote for it.

Rev. Mr. Reed stated that if he were a Hebrew, a Mormon, a Roman Catholic, or a kangaroo, he would like to come out and write himself down-what he was. The book of Common Prayer used the terms "Protestant Episcopal Church," and having these, what was the use of purloining terms which the Church had no vestage of claim to, and which would only render it ridiculous?

The mover of the Resolution-the Rev. Mr. Thorpe—said that he gloried in the term "Catholic," and that if he did not belong to that Church, he wanted the Convention so to state, clearly and distinctly. The Resolution was further discussed by Rev. G. C. Beets and others; one member asserting that the designation, "Church of God in the Diocese of Missouri," was just as general and more objectionable than that of "Catholic." The discussion was beginning to wax very warm, when a motion to table Mr. Thorpe's resolution was put and carried.

At the Evening Session, the Bishop concluded his Address. He dwelt at considerable length apon the lamentable lack of candidates for Holy Orders. He referred also, to the vexed Vestry system; suggesting, however, no remedy, except greater care in the selection of vestrymen, and 'prudent exercise of power by those selected." He also urged, upon the parochial clergy, the practise, wherever it might be possible, of a Celebration of the Holy Communion, on every Sun-I think we should come."

Many other points of importance were brought the secular papers are furnished by men unacsion of the actual utterances of the speaker. As which lies before us, the Bishop alleged, as 'the dominating reason" for the falling off in the growth and extension of the Church in his diocese, "the agitation which has been going on, for years, in the matter of ritual." Allow me to supplement the able letter of Judge Sheffey, in reply to "Henrico," in a recent issue of the LIVING CHURCH, by stating, thatin the total of contributions to Church-rent, reported in the Diocese of Virginia, for 1879—is not included the salaries of the Clergy, which are reported in the Dioceses. These would add to the offerings of the dear Old Diocese, at least $75,000.

An event has just happened here, which will making a long visit to her parents. prosperity. That event is—the laying of the parochial visitations, generally introducing them-Corner Stone of the "little church around the selves at the conclusion of the service, and speakcorner," which we are building.

This parish, -called "the Church of the Redeemer"-is nearly twenty-three years old; and, during all these years, there never has been a church-building in which to wosrhip. Two or three attempts have been made to build, with no success; and now that the Corner Stone of a that Church-people have abundant reason to feel joyful over it; more especially they who have lived here for a number of years, and who have "borne the burden and heat of the day."

About a year ago, the question of building was agitated among us again. Several meetings of the parishioners were held, and a good deal of interest was manifested. Subscription papers were circulated; and, in a few weeks, principally through the efforts of a few of the earnest, working ladies, the sum of nearly $2,800 was on the papers. About this time, one of Elgin's most enterprising and public spirited gregation at Cheboygan, though not yet organized citizens-Mr. H. L. Borden-came forward, and offered to purchase, and donate to the parish, a lot, on which to build the church. This noble and generous offer (from one, moreover, who is not a member of the Church) was gratefully accepted; and a corner lot, measuring four by eight rods, was purchased by Mr. Borden, for $1,300, and held for the parish.

I will not trespass upon your columns by going into details; but will proceed to state the result of the efforts made. The plans and specifications, which were drawn up, and donated by Mr. Clarence L. Stiles (a former Elginite, but now of Chicago), provided for the erection of a brick building. In the latter part of last August, it was decided to proceed at once to build. The contract was let; ground was broken on the 2nd of September; and, subsequently, arrangements were made for the laying of the Corner Stone.

Accordingly, on the afternoon of Tuesday, Sept. 28th, the Bishop, with the Rev. Peter Arvedson, of Algonquin, and Rev. E. F. Cleveland, M. D., of Dundee, duly vested, and accompanied by the vestry and choir, went in procession to the site, repeating the 122nd Psalm. The Service proceeded, as is usual on such occasions There was a congregation of between two and three hundred, composed of those who were interested, and those who came from mere curiosity; but the close and earnest attention given throughout,

At present, we are having no regular services here. There is a Sunday School of about 40 for years, is at the head. We have had no settled clergyman here for over two years; but occasional Services have been held, principally by the Bishop, and by that faithful and hardworking priest, Rev Peter Arvedson.

Elgin is such a growing, thriving place, and there are so many young men and women employed here, who have no especial religious connections, that it is important the Church should be established on a firm footing. It should send forth no uncertain sound, nor minister to "itching ears," but set forth the Gospel in the Church, without fear or favor. If this be the result of our present enterprise, the blessing of God will indeed rest upon it! Oct., 1880.

Church Work in Michigan. From our Detroit correspondent.

At the Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal denomination, recently held at Bay City, after the customary examination and passing of the preachers, Rev. W. H. Osborne, for the last two years minister at Owosso, and now. having been passed in due form, announced his of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and accordingly requested an honorable discharge from the Conference. The request was granted, with kind words. At the customary Wednesday evening service in St. John's Chapel, Detroit, on the 29th of September, Mr. Osborne was presented, by the Rev. Dr. Worthington, for the Laying on of Hands, and was confirmed by the Bishop of Michigan. It was an interesting service. A large congregation was in attendance, most of the Detroit clergy being present, and several of Mr. Osborne's late associates in the Methodist ministry. The Bishop made a most impressive and felicitous Address to the candidates, closing by a graceful and cordial offer of the right hand of fellowship. Mr. Osborne is a young man of considerable intellectual power and cultivation. The Bishop met him, after been followed by a correspondence opened by Mr. Osborne, who has gradually been feeling his Meanwhile, his wife, with her babe, will be

This general friendliness often assumes the form of a marked and inquiring interest, in the case of the younger and more cultivated men; and Michigan may look for further accessions to the Ministry of the Church from this quarter, within the next year or two. This is an appropriate sequel to the new edifice has actually been laid, we think illiberal and unprovoked attack of the revivalist Pentecost, on the Church and her ways, during the course of his Detroit campaign last Lent. The impertinent revivalist was too weak to interfere with the Church's annual revival season; but his impotent hostility has advertised the Apostolic Ministry, the Christian Year, and the freedom enjoyed by all under the paternal and well ordered government of the Church.

The Rev. Lewis C. Rogers, recently ordained Deacon at Grosse Isle, now assumes charge of the missions at Cheboygan and Mackinaw, which the Rev. W. W. Rafter has resigned. The conas a parish, has undertaken to support itself; and, in its new and consecrated church, offers the promise of a bright future.

The Western Convocation had a meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 23, at Ovid, in Clinton Co., the special occasion being the opening of the new church. At 10: 30 A. M., occurred the opening service; the Bishop preaching, and celeand by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Cross, of St. Johns, the Rev. R. W. Dennis of Howell, and the Rev. B. F. Matrau, of Owosso. The business session of the Convocation occurred in the afternoon, the rural dean, the Rev. M. A. Johnson, D. D. being then present, and also the Rev. Eben Thompson, of Lansing. Only one clergyman of the Convocation was absent. Arrangements were made for providing some much needed assistance to the Rev. Mr. Dennis, Missionary at Howell and Brighton, and also to secure the services of a Missionary for Jackson Co. The next meeting is appointed for Wednesday, Dec. 8th, at Lansing. At the evening service, a sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Cross.

The Secretary is Mrs. Colby; the Treasurer Mrs. Fletcher.

> The subscription for the new chapel of Trinity Church, Bay City, amounts to $6,100. About $1,300, more will be needed for the completion of the work as planned. The stone has been purchased, and most of it delivered. The foundation was to be completed by the first of this month. The chapel is building on the beautiful site which the parish purchased long ago, and, when completed, will serve, temporarily for all church services, the present uncomely church edifice being abandoned. The Rector of Trinity Church-the Rev. Alfred A. Butlerwhile in attendance as a Deputy to General Convention, will take charge of the services of the Church at Navesink, N. Y., by exchange with his friend, the Rev. Samuel Edson, who will take Mr. Butler's services at Bay City.

The Complaint of the Wardens.

By REV. PAUL PASTOR. Written for the Living Church.

My Wardens have entered a complaint. They ay that they have a most painful duty to discharge, on Sundays and other days of Divine Service. I added-"If you should be at Church" (for my Wardens, tho' pretty regular on Sundays, are not addicted to week-day attendance, except on Christmas, Thanksgiving, and days of that sort, when they do not lose anything by giving an hour or so to prayer and praise). They both smiled sadly, and went on. They say that, to carry the alms-basins around, has a deleterious effect on their religious condition. They come to have a dreadfully poor opinion of some of the congregation, and that interferes with the culti vation of charity and good will. They notice the persons who generally give; and those who do not; even how much this and that attendant usually puts in. They know, almost to a certainty, how many dead-heads a pew has in it, before they get to it; and so they attribute much of their lack of growth in grace to carrying the basin. Year in and year out, this deterior process goes on, until, in a short time, they fear they will have but little piety left. They have both seriously thought of resigning, if only to save themselves from becoming spiritus wrecked. At the same time, they see that i matter would be no better for their succ than it has been for themselves. No one can have any idea, they insist, of the effect of the alms-bason on the spiritual condition, until he carries it a few months. A ten-button kid glove will lay a ten cent piece in the bason, with complacency; and a gold headed cane will deposit a nickel with evident satisfaction. If fifteen dollar bonnets contribute a quarter, they do well; ile a sixty do lar shaw with half of that sum, throwing off the fractions. In fine, the position of Warden is unspeakably trying, made worse lby the secresy which the office enjoins upon those who hold it.

I asked if there could be no remedy found for this distressing condition of affairs. The Junior Warden suggested that there be no more secret balloting, but that every one attach his card to his contribution. The Senior suggested that he be allowed to act as usher for six months, and to seat people in church not according to their past dress, but according to their past record at Offertory time. I told my Wardens, that my congregations were small enough now; and, on the whole, that their office was not half so trying as mine, having to offer the alms on the Altar. They never seemed to have thought of that, and agreed to continue in office the rest of the year.

The Inward Adorning. Written for the Living Church.

We cannot all be beautiful in face and figure. Many walk the earth sorrowfully all their days, because of some deformity of body; but, thanks be to God! there need be no malformation of spirit. We are able, through Divine Grace, to be perfect in the inner man. If we fail of spiritual beauty and attractiveness, the fault lies at our own door. We know that the means are provided, by which to do away with every defect of nature; so that we may, through Jesu: Christ brating the Holy Euch wist, and being assisted be acceptable before God, as the first Adam, and by the Rev. S. S. Chapin, missionary in charge, the first Eve were, when they came from His Creating Hand. Who does not covet the beauty of holiness, and the verdict "very good," which God will pronounce upon those children of His. who had striven to do His will? If we expect to be taken up, and made over without any effort or will of our own, we shall surely be disapor will or our own, we shall surely be disappointed. Our co-operation is necessary to the blessed result. Shall we not put forth every energy toward that inward adorning, and so insure the Divine help and Grace? F. B. S.

On Thursday morning a similar service was held, and, at night, after another earnest service, with the Psalter chanted antiphonally, as before, and a choice selection of hymns, the Rev. Mr. MacEwan read an address, setting forth the neces-sity of the principle established by Gluck and others—that in vocal music, the music should suggest, support and follow the words. Letters were read from the Rev. Dr. Hopkins and the Rev. Dr. Shackelford, and the Bishop read Dr. Dix's preface to the Trinity Psalter. The offerings made were to defray the expenses of the Con-

On Friday morning the Holy Communion was celebrated, the services beginning with the Litany, which was chanted. The attendance was very good indeed. On the evening of the same day there was another spirited service, of a slightly different character. The teachings of the different seasons of the Christian year were exemplified by reading from the prophecies and singing appropriate hymns. The Bishop then read two letters, one from the Rev. Dr. Nevius, and one from an anonymous correspondent. They were both able articles upon church music, pointing out some of its most flagrant evils as often conducted and experience works.

On Sunday morning there was another hearty service, and the Rev. Mr. Plummer, rector of Trinity Church, Portland, preached. This was a happy day for all. In the evening two adults were baptized and three confirmed. The bishop gave a short address after the baptism.

Before the Confirmation Service, he gave another most clear, forcible and earnest address on the teaching of the Church in the sacred rite. And first, we notice, with great pleasure, the establishment of an Associate Mission, in which the Rev. Messrs. Austin, Blooming Prairie, Owatonna, Waseca, Janesville, New Rushland and Albert Lea are all to enjoy the results of this combination of forces. Hope For Consumptives At Last.

From official record, we learn that over sixty thousand persons die annually in the United States from pulmonary consumption. In each of these cases there was a first or incipent stage of the disease, when all the life forces and organic structures were yet unimpaired by its en-croachments. If at this time an agent had been found which could give to the system a higher degree of vitality, and so enable it to resist the deadly assault; this perilous crisis would have been safely passed. And not this one only. In every subsequent assault of the enemy, especially where there existed some hereditary taint, a prompt resort to the same re-vitalizing agent would have given a like relief and immunity. Now it is confidently claimed, and the claim is substantiated by the results of over twelve years, experience of its use, that just such an agent has been discovered in COMPOUND OXYGEN, the use of which is rapidly extending. If you wish to learn all about this new treatment, address Drs. Starkey & Palen, Philadelphia, Pa., and

From the report of our Special Correspondent in New York, we give the following summary of the proceedings of the General Convention, up to Saturday P. M .:

Our General · Convention assembled in New York, last Wednesday, Oct. 6th; and, after the opening service and sermon, organized, by the election of the Rev. E. E. Beardsley, D. D., of New Haven, as President, and the Rev. C. L. Hutchins, of Massachusetts, as Secretary. The Rev. Drs. Dix, Van Dusen and Schenck, were prominent candidates. On the second day of the session, Bishop Cotterill, of Edinburgh, Bishop Herzog, of Switzer- It was placed on the calendar. land, and a delegation from Canada, were introduced to the Convention. Memo- promptly. The Committees are hard at rials and resolutions were introduced, to enquire into the disposition of the late Trustees and Alumni of Nashotah have a appointment of a Bishop for Arizona and day. New Mexico; to erect Dakota into a Diocese; to change the time of holding the Convention from once in three years to once in five years; to change the number of Deputies in each order, from four to two; to change the basis of representation, from equality of dioceses, to a pro rata on the number of communicants; to authorize the election of an Assistant Bishop for Virginia. Friday was spent by the two Houses, in joint session, as the Missionary Board of the Church; and speeches were made by the several Bishops of the Missionary Jurisdictions, and by the Bishop of Cape Palmas. On Saturday, the papers of the Federate Council of Illinois, were referred to the Committee on Canons.

The following abstract of proceedings on Monday and Tuesday, has been received by Special Telegran to the LIVING CHURCH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11th, 8:05 P. M.

Yesterday, the various churches of the city were thronged, in order to hear from the many distinguished bishops and clergy. In the evening, a great Missionary meeting was held in Holy Trinity Several speeches were made, and the social Church, which was densely crowded. Bishop Herzog was among the speakers. To-day, the House was quite full. Prof. Coppee presented a Report on Christian Education (which was adopted), taking strong ground in favor of building, endowing, and patronizing Church Schools. To send our children to sectarian—and especially -to Roman Catholic Schools, is a great mistake, being prolific of perversions.

The Rev. Dr. Adams, of Wisconsin, made a characteristic speech, showing how the Church ought to and may utilize the great State Universities, by establishing Church Colleges with chambers, dining-hall and chapel; and, also, a president and one or more tutors for the students who may wish to reside there, and be, at the same time, members of the University. There, they would enjoy all State privileges, while they would still be under Church influences.

The resolutions proposed by the Rev. Dr. Beers, of California, for the appointment of a Joint Committee on giving a ily, in what is now nearly a century of Bishop to each Territory, passed the House, and the Bishops have concurred. The question of Tenure of Church properry, was introduced by Judge Wilder, of Red Wing, Minn., and placed on calendar. A resolution of respect for the faithful in the Southern cities during the prevalence of the yellow fever, was tabled by the influence of the Southern Deputies, who firmly declined to be praised. Much eloquence and no little time was wasted, in the consideration of this matter, and the result occasioned considerable disappointment in many quarters.

A Committee of the House of Bishops, consisting of Bishops Whipple, Dudley, Lay, and Lee, came down to the Lower House, in the course of the afternoon session; when brief addresses were made by them, upon the question of establishing a permanent fund for the relief of superannuated clergymen, and their widows and orphans. Bishop Lee gave an account of what has been done, and urged the Church

"Neither parishes, nor dioceses," he remarked, "could remedy the evil. This great Church must rise up, and say to its have been largely consumed, in conquer-Clergy: 'Be not afraid! You shall be cared for." Bishop Whipple showed how dom necessary to its existence and great the need is, and expressed his belief that the Church would not fail to respond to it. Bishop Lay said, that there are some things too full of pathos to be written down. There are the most urgent appeals, which it is impossible for the Bishops to meet. With a due amount of energy, these evils can be alleviated. The Rev. Dr. Hanckel, of Virginia, pleaded eloquently for immediate action.

On motion of the Rev. Dr. Noah H. Schenck, a committee was appointed, to devise a plan for the payment of the expences of Deputies, by increased assess-

A message was received from the Bishops, asking for a Joint Committee in the interests of the Indians, for the promotion of legislation giving them legal protection.

Special Telegram to the Living Church.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12, 1880. Little business of general interest has been transacted to-day. The House has been very dull, and it is suspected that the Deputies were out late last night, viewing the procession. The motion to appoint a Committee on the forthcoming Version of the Bible, was tabled by a strong vote. Dr. Dix read the report of Joint Committee appointed by last Convention, to secure the protection of the civil law for the Indians, and introduced Resolution for were taken in the conflict that followed. Dr. Norton, of Virginia, sounded the charge, and the bugle blast of Gov. Stevenson closed the fray. Withers and Blair distinguished themselves. The Resolution was finally made the order of the day for Tuesday next, and the Report is to be printed. The opposition was based on its alleged interference with civil affairs. After lunch, the Deputies were invited to meet the Bishops at the Windsor Hotel. hour was much enjoyed. To-morrow both Houses meet again as a Board of Missions.

It is reported that the Federate Council of Illinois has been unanimously approved she can win the multitude to Christ. by Committee on Canons.

An Outside View.

The Secular press of New York, while not remarkable for enterprise in reporting intelligent attention to the situation. The reports are very brief (almost sententious), the editorials take a much more candid and liberal view of the character and mission of that Church, than we are accusern journals. What could be more sharp and incisive than this remark of the New York Times: "The Episcopal famorganic existence in this country, has enfact that in its earlier history it had no Faith. It also had to conquer the political prejudices growing out of the Revolution. This explains its early position." Could language more accurately express that polar region, through which-by mystery of Providence,-the Church passed in the early part of the century-Catholic Faith?" And have we yet wholly recovered from that regime? But the Times writer goes on to sum up our history, in a word: "Then," he says. most of the chills and fevers of the Engwith points of debatable doctrine, than with its proper work as a Church of Christ in America. For this and for other rea-ing, at the hands of its members, the freegrowth." It is a dreadful indictment against us, which this writer brings, when he says: "At the hands of its members." The Church could get freedom to exist hyper-conservatism. "Some of the ablest at the same rate. Orders should be for men have participated in the debates," some of them have lent too ready aid, to chain the Church down to the dimensions of a sect, and to prevent her legitimate development, by the insensate and despicable cry of "Romanism." That day, thank God! is passing; although there are, in the Convention of to-day, laymen, and perhaps, clergy of the same stamp. The Times writer, who has been studying His-

Dr. John Cotton Smith, that the office of Parties is to represent Schools of opinion tolerant of one another, because each is the complement of the other, first obtained recognition in ecclesiastical circles. Ritualism conquered in that Convention. because it had a fight to exist, as a school of opinion, and the Low Church Party passed through the agonies of death in opposing it. But the contest was wider and greater than the triumph of party. The point at stake was whether the Episcopal Church should remain a respectable sect, representing the opinions of a handful of religionists, or grow out into a broad, vigorous, and Catholic body, tolerant of all opinions which do not conflict with the essentials of the Faith. Toleration triumphed; and men like Bishop Cummins, who had regard to but one set of opinions, withdrew to more congenial quarters. At the Convention which met in Boston in 1877, the Episcopal Church, for the first continuing such efforts. Several scalps time in its history, met without a crisis,

Paying the Piper.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9, 1880. To the Editor of the Living Church:

The General Convention is now fairly under way, and happily proceeding. With the majority of deputies, however, the great question, over and above the provincial system and the constitutional commission, was and is how to be loused and fed, and be able to foot the bills.

Now, about this matter of entertainment at the General Convention, there are two sides to have hearing. On the one side, are the deputies: and here is the great city of New York with plenty of room and abundance of money. Why do not the citizens open their doors, and give the deputies a free and generous welcome? Or, if it is better to have them abide at the hotels, why do not a few rich churches take up a collection, and square the account? Especially, why do not the churches of the diocese do it? On Monday and Tuesday the deputies began to come into town; and, such of them as had not the favor of private hospitality, and wished to fall back on the Committee of Arrangements, were compelled to go through a form of unpleasantness, thus: Had they received a letter or circular from the Committee? Had they replied? Did they wish to take advantage of the commutation rates at certain hotels, and receive (by way of paying expenses) the $50, guaranteed in Circular Letter? Church to-day, "is probably in a sounder If so, they were handed a card, which means a condition, more Catholic, more tolerant, discount at the hotels of perhaps a dollar a day. What is $50 towards seeing the majority of these men in pocket, when they get back to their parishes? Why, one Deputy remarked to the writer, on Monday, that his journey had cost him $100, while others said, that, so great was the expense, they should have to hurry home, in order to keep from embarrassment. It was the good fortune of your Correspondent, to be able to put some of these men in a way of living in New pended in discussing the practical question, York, which may help them through, and which How can we make the Church, the is more in keeping with a clergyman's income; "The Church experienced, in a new soil, it shall bring its wisdom and experience to say that scores of men will not get over the to bear upon the social problems which go cost of being Deputies to the General Convention,

What is the use of talking about self-denial, when the Missionary Bishop of Oregon could say, that, in all the time he had had charge of his jurisdiction, not a single young man had offered himself for service.

I do not know whether the entire Convention has registered at Mr. T. Whittaker's, No. 2 Bible House, but there are between ten and eleven pages of new names, since Monday; so that I take it to be the general guide-book and directory of the Deputies' whereabouts. With his usual hospitality and enterprise, Mr. Whittaker has put himself to no little inconvenience, to devote a coom to their service, where they can indulge in all manner of cheerful greetings and conversasays the Times; and it might add, that hundred extra copies are already spoken tion, by way of relieving the seriousness, not to say, the tediousness of debate.

More about the Convention.

The progress which the Church makes, and the changes of animus and tendency, which occur during each triennial period, are apt to manifest themselves distinctly in each Convention, at a very early period in the sessions. Whether the popular mind always perceives it, is another question. But close observers cannot avoid reading the signs of the times. Hitherto, in the General Conventions of the Church, the contest for the presidency of the House of Deputies has ordinarily been between the School of alleged thought known as "Evangelical," and the more Churchly School. Such scarcely seems to have been the case to-day, in New York. There were four presbyters nominated, of whom not one is regarded as representing the defunct school referred to. One, a Brooklyn rector (Dr. Schenck,) is reported to have slid down into what are called "Broad" proclivities; though, what that means, this deponent knoweth not, neither expecteth to know, unless it means nothing in particular, only not (by any means) high" nor (any longer) "low." Dr. Van Deusen, of Utica, and Dr. Beardsley, of Connecticut, belong to that excellent class of men who, a quarter of a century ago, were more or less nerve-devastating and holy-horror-arousing to the powerful Low-Church party, by reason of their more, and more than "semi-popish" views. Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity Church, represents the progress of the Church since that day. In him and his School, the Church is discovered to be a tree and not an obelisk. He represents the School that respects nothing of the past that is not Catholic, nor rejects anything of the present that is Catholic. This is the School that has as little sympathy with extremes of ritual, for mere ritual's sake, as it has reverence for specimens of the fossiliferous period, however well preserved.

The first ballot was, of course, tentative; and it is not too much to say, that its result was a great surprise. Without any of the preliminary operations that there is good reason for supposing to connect with other names, the first ballot gave Dr. Dix 79 votes. This was the surprise. The discovery of so much strength in the ranks of young "Episcopalianism" (pardon the word!) struck terror to the vitals of the several contendpay for the Church's legislation? Nearly four ing interests. The effect was evident in the its own childhood, and rises, in a spirit of hundred deputies are here, not to legislate for one next ballot. The vote for Dr. Schenck sank in one fell swoop, to 17; Dr. Van Deusen (whose Why does not the Church at large see that the name ought to have been withdrawn, in order to thing is paid for? Of course the Churches in secure a square test of the relative strength of this diocese can raise $10,000; but $10,000 given the real contending parties), received 25 votes. to pay the expenses of the Convention, means the | weakening Dix's support, by more than half that same amount not given to charitable objects. If number of ballots. Dr. Schenck's loss (inthe churches are rich, there is a constant drain on cluding nearly all the remains of the "low" element), was Dr. Beardsley's gain, upon the here from every part of the country, and the call principle, that—half a loaf is better than no bread. Connecticut, (which, in the person of the Scottish Bishop, Dr. Cotterill,-had a reminder that extreme conservatism will not always win,) failed to recognize that the American Church has grown since the days of Seabury, and was able to carry with her all the elements, that in other days it was her chief glory to vanquish. "Tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis." But the victory was necessary, to reveal the surprising strength of the new element. They say that Dr. DeKoven is dead. Well, those 85 votes, cast for Dix, were cast by men who would have cast them for DeKoven, if he had been in the flesh; and eighty-five is a formidable minorit, to deal with, gentlemen of the House of Deputies! We had no right, humanly speaking, to expect such a vote for such a man, for there has been a very busy and determined pushing of several other names. Moreover, there are gray-bearded priests, who have not yet learned that the destinies of the Church, as well as those of the country, are to be in the hands of the younger men; and who still cleave to the prescriptions of Hanoverian interpretation of the Catholic strengthen Christianity beyond the limits all. The worst thing is, that, whoever is to a Past, that is worthy to be worshipped only as it prepared the Church for a more glorious future. Nevertheless, Dr. Morgan Dix, Rector of Trinity Church, the friend of James DeKoven, the exponent of the Church in its noblest and most Catholic development, received 85 votes. He was not elected. Connecticut, by the alliances she made, put an excellent presbyter in the chair. But it became evident, that the principle which DeKoven advocated with the mouth of a Chrysostom, and which Dix preaches with the ability of an Augustine, had reached the point of acceptance, which for the first time announced itself in a distinct vote, respectable Church Catholic of Christ in America; if but, what an unjust burden, and what miserable in numbers, and second only to that which would disdain to call itself "low" or "broad:" though accepting all of the "low" and "broad" votes it could get.

Your Correspondent rejoices to know, that the significance of this ballot is recognized in high people, if it will only show the corporate teresting; but what a story those Missionary quarters. It means, that there is no danger of intelligence, which already exists in the work, and the smallness of their resources! I past, nor of making the Church the laughingsons, it lagged behind as a pioneer in personal experience of many of its mem-

The General Convention and its Services.

To the Editor of the Living Church:

The opening Services of the General Convention of the Church ought to present a model for the Church at large, and be in every particular conducted with becoming majesty.

They do not as yet, however, present this aspect, but rather give us a sort of general average of what the Church has attained to.

In the Opening Services of the General Convention of 1880, we find a vast advance in order and dignity, over past occasions. The congregation of earnest worshippers, which filled the church to overflowing, was-in itself-an ininspiring spectacle. The music, simple, broad and grand, well sustained by a large chorus of men and boys (the united choirs of Trinity Parish), was joined in largely by the Congrega-Parish), was joined in largely by the Congrega-

The orderly Procession of the Bishops; the ease with which all found their assigned places in the Chancel; the dignity and reverence of the Offertory; the care with which the Elements were placed, at the proper time, upon the Altar; the reverent consumption of that which remained after the Communion; and the orderly return of the Procession of Bishops to their Robing Room-all this was something to be thankful for; and showed that the spirit of order and reverence has been widening and spreading in the Church, and extending itself upward, so that the very highest peaks are being clothed with verdure and glory.

But, when we have said this, we have said all. To most devout Churchmen, the opening services of General Convention, despite all the dignity which comes from historic association, and from the presence of a multitude, are very unsatisfactory. Especially is this so, with regard to the Holy Eucharist. Here is this august Service, entirely in the hands of the Fathers of the Church. They are responsible for it; for its order, dignity and reverence. But what do we find? Why, that the Service is cut and pieced, until the idea of a Celebrant is lost. One does this, another does that. The Chalices and Patens are passed from Bishop to Bishop with bows to each other, as now this one or now that is politely asked if he will not communicate a few of the Comforter may reconcile them to their loss, the people. There is an interminable moving about and a general mixing of things, in a way which would be almost ludicrous if it were not so very painful.

Then, what could be more grandly absurd, than the way the placing of the Alms upon the Altar was magnified into a grand function; all made small, however, by the scrambling way in which, as an after-thought, some priests and Bishops went around the Chancel, with collection plates, while the people were reverently standing, waiting for what was to come next.

- The bringing of the Elements, too, from the Credence to the Altar, while in itself proper and rubrical, was marred by the way in which it was done. The priests who brought them did their best to have things "decent and in order;" but it was not a seemly sight to see the paten handed on from one Bishop to another, until it reached, at last, the Altar; nor was it agreeable, to see three enormous Flagons passed along in like care of LIVING CHURCH, 162, Washington St., manner. Had the Celebrant, the Epistoler and Chicago, Ill. the Gospeller, each occupied his proper place, these lesser details of the Services would not have been magnified into most prominent acts.

Referring to the musical portion of the Service, the only part that soured into the region of high Art was-the Sanctus, which was from Gounod's Solemn Mass. The Solos were superbly sung, by Rev. Wm. H. Cooke; and the rich voices of the Choristers sounded especially sweet and touching, in this truly religious movement of the great composer. Those who were bowed down in worship, and wrapt by its mystic strains, enjoyed its reverent beauty, unmolested. But those whose eyes were lifted upward, were pained to see the ineffectual efforts to stop the choir, made by the Presiding Bishop. The pain and sense of disorder were heightened, when the Bishop, who read the Preface, proceeded to repeat the Sanctus in full, after the Choir had solemnly and reverently sung the

It seems to me that it is time for the House of Bishops, as a House, to take this matter of the Celebration of the Holy Eucharist into their own hands, at General Convention. It is no time for individual likes and preferences. The Services ought to be solemn, dignified, and orderly, and truly representative of the Church. To secure this, the House of Bishops should have its Precentor, elected from its own numbers, to order the details of Music and Ritual. There is talent enough in the House, to have even the choral portions of the Holy Eucharist led by a choir of Bishops, Right Reverend cantors, lifting up their voices, and leading the worship of the people in the most solemn act of our holy Faith. To seoure this, everything must not be left in the hands of any one man; the Bishops must-as a College—take order for all things, and place the details of the various parts of the Service in the hands of those duly appointed for the work. Then we should have a noble service, filling us with delight, free from blunders, and from the exhibition of prejudice and ignorance.

But, return to things for which we must be thankful. Was it not a sight to be thankful for, to see on one side of Bishop Smith, Bishop Cotterill of Edinburgh, arrayed in full canonicals, with his scarlet and crimson hood; and, or the other side, Bishop Herzog, old Catholic Bishop of Switzerland, wearing his Cope of white silk, heavy with embroidery; and having round his neck a chain of gold, from which ing round his neck a chain or gold, from which hung over his breast, the Cross, the sign of our redemption? All that it needed, was—Bishop Seabury's mitre in sight, to make everything complete. Who could have expected, six years ago, to see such sights in St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, at this Convention of 1880?

WALKER—Entered into rest at his home in Chicago, Oct. 5, Robert H. Walker, aged 36. Grant him, Oh Lord! eternal rest, and may perpetual light shine on him!

The following resolutions were passed by the Wardens and Vestry of the Church of the Epiphany, of which body Mr. Walker was a member.

It having pleased the All-Wise Father to call from earth to Paradise, the soul of our late associate and brother, ROBERT H. WALKER; and, deeming it proper that we should express our regret for the loss to us, sustained in his death, and recognize and record our appreciation of his Christian character and true manliness:

Resolved, That, by the decease of our brother we have been deprived of one, whose life has ex-emplified the beauty of Christian teaching, and the power of Christian faith, one whose counsel was always wise, whose liberality was always generous, whose heart was ever kind, and whose love for and devotion to our dear Church, were not a sentiment only, but a part of his life

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his family in their affliction, and earnestly pray, that and bring them those rich blessings which He has promised to all who trust in Him.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this body be instructed, to transmit to the widow of our deceased brother, a copy of the foregoing Preamble and Resolutions.

"Walk in the Light."

[Hymn, written for the use of the Epiphany Society, St. John's Church, Penn Station, by the Rev. Wm. Augustus White, Pastor. Tune: Webb, "

"Come let us walk in the light of the Lord."

The ancient Faith confessing, We join in Jesus' Name; His Cross, the source of blessing, With fervor we proclaim; In words and actions holy, As in the Master's sight, O may our hearts be lowly While walking in the light!

We'll tell with glad emotion, The wonders Grace hath wrought, And sing with rapt devotion, The riches Love hath brought:-For sinners lost and weary,
A pathway pure and bright;
Where none are sad and dreary, While walking in the light.

The holy dead and sainted-The martyrs gone before, Who toiled, and never fainted, In all the days of yore— To realms of glory pointing, Our tardy souls incite, The Spirit, too, anointing, While walking in the light.

Bless, Lord, the good endeavor Of this our sacred band; And guard and keep it ever Directed by Thy Hand; And when our work is ended, O give us robes of white, Such as Thy saints commended Shall wear, in fadeless light!

A Prayer.

Out from our human hearts, O Lord, A cry of anguish goes, That Thou who not st the sparrow's fall Might look upon the woes Of all by care and grief oppressed-The hearts by sorrow riven, Teach them, O Lord of love, to know That though they sorrow here below, There is no pain in heaven.

Bind up the broken hearts, O Lord, And give them joy for woe; Oh, fill them with that perfect peace Which from Thyself doth flow. Upon the brows now sorrow-crowned Oh, set Thy crown of love, And teach them, gracious Lord, to know, That though they suffer here below, There's rest for them above.

Give rest unto their weary feet, Strengthen their feeble hands; And may they feel Christ's love is sweet, In every earthly land.
Oh, teach them, Heavenly Father, how
The cross they bear to-day, The cross they bear to-uay,
A crown of glory shall become,
When in that bright eternal home
They dwell with Thee for aye.

Beer Drinking in England.

By RICHARD GRANT WHITE.

The Englishman, and particularly the Englishman of the laboring class, is wedded to his beer. He feels that it is the great comfort, and one of the very few enjoyments, of his life. And not only is the chocolate room or any other like contrivance "slow," but there is about it an implication that he is taken in hand and managed by his betters, like a child, which he not unnaturally resents. Rightly extends from Saturday night to Monday, and not unfrequently into Tuesday. The "S-s-h,"murmured Jimmy, happening to result of this habit, which may almost be called a custom, is deplorable and socially beer which has come so much into vogue here of late years under the name of other effect than that of unpleasant distenthree grown up daughters to provide for, he certainly paid strict heed to the Scripture injunction, and literally gave no heed to the morrow, the things of to-day proving quite enough to manage. The daughters, with longings and aspirations in life much the same as other girls, would sometimes say pathetically—a tinge of imparitience just infusing their speech—I wish father would sometimes think of us, and

Francis Chantrey.

Many years ago, in the year 1872, a little boy named Francis Chantrey was born near Sheffield. His father was a poor man, and when he died little Francis helped his mother by driving an ass laden with milk to sell into the town. When old enough, he was sent to a grocer in Sheffield, that he might learn the trade. He did not like learning to be a grocer at all, but one day, as he was passing a carver's shop window, he stopped to look at the pretty things it contained, and was seized with such a longing to be a carver, that he begged to be allowed to give up grocery at once. His friends consented, and he was bound apprentice to the carver and gilder. His new master, besides being a carver in wood, sold prints and plaster models, and these Francis used to try and imitate. All his spare hours he spent in drawing and modeling, never wasting a minute; and he would even sit up till midnight, working away at groups and figures.

At last he made up his mind that he would be an artist, so he gave his master all the money he had saved to let him go free, and made the best of his way to London, where he got work as an assistant-carver, that he might earn money to buy food, and spent his spare time in improving himself in modeling. Among other work, he was employed to decorate the dining-room of Mr. Rogers, the poet; and years afterwards, when the poor struggling boy was a great man, and dining as guest in that very room, he used to like to point out to the other guests sitting round the table the handiwork of his early

After working hard for some time, he was admitted as a student at the Royal Academy, and then he did work. Even defect in his sight, which must have been a serious hindrance to him, did not lesson his energy or his labors. He used to go to Sheffield from time to time to paint portraits and make busts, and once a confectioner there paid him five pounds and a pair of top-boots for a portrait in

When in London, he had a room over a stable as a studio, and there he modeled his first original piece of sculpture for exhibition. This was a gigantic head of Satan. Many years afterwards a friend noticed this model lying in a corner of his

"That head," said Chantrey, "was the first thing that I did after I came to London. I worked at it in a garret with a paper cap on my head; and as I could then afford only one candle, I stuck that one in my cap, that it might move along with me; and give me light whichever way I turned.'

Success now came in earnest to the hard-working artist. This head was so much admired by the great sculptor, Flaxman, that he recommended that Chantrey should be employed to execu e the busts of four admirals for the Naval Asylum at Greenwich, and this commis-

His statue of Lady Louisa Russell, holding a dove in her bosom, is so wonderfully natural, that a child of three years old coming into his studio held up its little hands to the figure, and began to speak to it, thinking it was alive.

But perhaps the most beautiful of all his works is the monument of the Sleeping Children now in Lichfield Cathedral. When exhibited at the Royal Academy it drew tears from mothers' eyes, and children lovingly kissed the figures. Chantrey was not only clever and persevering, but kind and good; he was always ready to encourage poor and struggling artists, and even to give them a share of the money he earned; and when he died he left his large fortune for the promotion of the fine arts in his native land. - Selected.

When the boys in Europe wish to rob an owl's nest of the young, and cannot reach nalism, and for any good we have done down the hollow tree, says a writer in Forest and Stream, they tie a worsted stocking to a stick and poke it down. The birds turn on their backs and grasp the stocking with their claws, and are easily drawn up, as they possess the faculty of holding on in a high degree, as my torn experience; we have had a baby and it is clothes and lacerated hands could frequently testify. Owls are easily tamed, and sometimes made interesting pets, although there are more differences in individual tempers than most people would imagine. I have at this time three snowy owls, captured this winter. One was wounded with a rifle ball; one was trapped; the other attacked a hen in midday, but was in turn knocked over by a gallant gamecock; the farmer saw the circumstances, ran and threw his coat over the owl and secured him. All my birds are very tame, and will submit to be coaxed

Amendment of Canons.

Correspondence of the Living Church.

The unfortunate ambiguity of the Canons defining the authority of Standing Committees in regard to Postulants and Candidates for Holy Orders, produced so much practical mischief in the Diocese of Maryland and elsewhere, during the last year, that the matter is likely to occupy the attention of the General Convention. If you think the following proposed Amendments of a Canon whose ambiguity caused the mischief, worthy of consideration by your readers, their insertion in the LIVING CHURCH will oblige.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1, 1880.

TITLE I. CANON 2.

§ III. [1.] The Postulant for admission to Candidateship may, at any time, after applica-tion to the Bishop duly made, and having re-ceived from him a certificate to the effect that he approves and advises his proceeding to Candidateship, apply to the Standing Committee of the Diocese for recommendation to the Bishop, for admission as a Candidate.

[2.] In order thereto, he shall, with his application, and with the certificate of the Bishop's approval, lay before the Committee a Testimonial in the following words:

We, whose names are hereunder written, testify from our personal knowledge and belief, that A. B. is pious, sober and honest; that he is at-tached to the doctrine, discipline and worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and that he is a Communicant of the said Church in good standing; and we do furthermore declare, that, in our opinion, he possesses such qualifications as fit him for entrance on a course of preparation for the Holy Ministry.

[3.] Such testimonial shall be signed by the [3.] Such testimonial shall be signed by the Rector and a majority of the Vestry of the Parish or Congregation to which the Postulant may belong; said Vestry being duly convened, and this fact being explicitly stated on the face of the testimonial, such statement being sufficient evidence of the fact so stated. And such testimonial the library stated and such testimonial the library stated and such testimonial the library stated. monial shall be considered in all cases sufficient; and shall be in all cases required, unless the Postulant shall satisfy the Standing Committee that there are good and sufficient reasons render-ing it impossible for him to, obtain such testi-

[4.] If the Standing Committee are satisfied that the reasons assigned by the Postulant to justify his not producing the testimonial above required, are sufficient (of which sufficiency they shall be the sole judge), the Postulant shall produce a testimonial in the words herein before required, but signed by at least one Presbyter and four respectable laymen, Communicants of the Protestant Episcopal Church. And such Testimonial, when once allowed and presented to the Standing Committee, shall be received, and judged sufficient.

[5.] The Standing Committee shall in no case dispense with one or other of the testimonials hereinbefore required, unless the Bishop of the Diocese shall have been duly satisfied, and shall have certified the Standing Committee of the same, that there are in his judgment, satisfactory reasons for dispensing with those testimonials. If the Bishop shall have so certified them, then a majority of members of the Standing Committee, having the requisite personal knowledge of a Postulant for recommendation, may at the discretion tulant, for recommendation, may, at the discretion of the Standing Committee, dispense with the presentation of either of those testimonials.

[6.] The Standing Committee by receipt of testimonials, as hereinbefore required; or in its discretion, as hereinbefore restricted, on the personal knowledge of a majority of its members, being duly satisfied that there is no sufficient obection on grounds, either physical, moral, intellectual or religious, shall proceed to recommend a Postulant for admission to Candidateship, by a Certificate in one or other of the following forms, as the case may require; signed by a majority of all the members of the Standing Committee, and addressed to the Bishop of the Diocese.

The church is centrally located, on very high land, and is 66x36, of wood, with a spire whose cross is 100 feet above the ground. It has a recessed chancel, and is finished with brown ash throughout. The roof is an open truss. It has an excellent pipe organ, and a Font of exquisite design, made by the sculptor Powers, in Florence, Italy. The windows are of stained glass, and are largely memorials, seven having hear ence, Italy. The windows are of stained glass, and are largely memorials, seven having been given by the original mission workers. The whole house is in the most excellent taste, and must be a great satisfaction to those who have labored so hard to bring their hopes to this substantial realization. The total cost is $7,000. The sacred edifice was very handsomely decorated with evergreens, cut flowers, and stands of pot-plants. The music was furnished by a choir of seventeen voices, led by Mr. James Strathern, choir-master, and deserves especial praise for its heartiness and excellence.

In the afternoon, the children were met and catechised by the Bishop. In the evening, a missionary meeting was held, and addresses made by Rev. Dr. Bailey, and Messrs. Putnam and Hill, after which two persons were confirmed. A reception then took place in the parlors of the Stowart House.

Thus starts this good work, on a new basis.

May it prosper, and be a source of blessing to all who come within its precints!

England.—We are sorry to learn that the newly appointed "Evangelical" Bishop of Liverpool, Dr. J. C. Ryle, seems resolved to learn nothing from the past, in the matter of prosecunothing from the past, in the matter of prosecu-tion on account of ritual. He has called upon Mr. Cox, incumbent of St. Margaret's Prince's Park, to give up four points—lighted candles, the use of a cope, incense, and the biretta. Now these things have all been in use in this church, for the past eleven years; and the Bishop of Chester, within whose jurisdiction this church was, until the erection of the See of Liverpool, never interferred in the matter, although frequently urged by hostile partisans to do so. And further, the congregation do not desire any changes in the ritual. Notwithstanding which, the Bishop seems bent upon harrying Priest and people, and breaking up the good work which has been going on there for so many years.

The Rev. William John Butler, Vicar of Wantage, has been appointed to the canonry at Worcester, rendered vacant by the death of the Rev. Canon Seymour.

A Busy Life.—The World's Dispensary at Buffalo, N. Y., is a great institution, having its auxiliary Invalids' Hotel, for accommodation of patients, costing its founder nearly half a million of dollars, and its branch in London, England of similar proportions, where Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pleasant Purgative Pellets and other remedies are manufactured for the foreign trade, which extends to the East Indies, China and other far distant countries. All this ized and built up by Dr. R. V. Pierce, who has associated with himself as a Faculty, under the name of the World's Dispensary Medical Assoname of the World's Dispensary Medical Association, a most competent staff of physicians and surgeons who annually treat many thousands of cases of chronic diseases, not by prescribing any set lot of remedies but by using all such specific remedies as have, in a large experience, been found most efficacious. Besides organizing and directing this mammouth business of world-wide proportions, Dr. Pierce, has found time to write a work on domestic medicine—entitled "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser"—1,000 pages, 300 illustrations selling at $1.50, and also pages, 300 illustrations, selling at $1.50, and also to serve a term as State Senator, and later as member of Congress. Surely he must be competent if he were to take the lecture platform, to discourse upon "the recollections of a busy life."

our's, especially in the management of Missionary work. His allusion to the troubles and contentions in the General Convention, six years ago, in which he took an active part, in opposing the Consecration of Dr. Seymour as Bishop, was very happily turned. He said, that some years ago—a disease had broken out in the Church; sometimes manifesting itself in a very "high" fever, and sometimes in a "low." He himself had it very hard. In his case it was "low:" some of his friends feared he would die with it; and some, he thought, feared he would not! He had fully recovered, and didn't want to have that disease more than once. The Church, he hoped, was free from it, forever. The time had come for party Shibbolethes to be buried with the bones of the Ichthyosauros and other horrid anious of the pricet's office, by Solomon(1 Kings II: mals of the antideluvian period! While no latitude could be allowed in matters de Fide, he rejoiced in the liberty of opinion that is allowed

An abstract of the other speakers would make my report too long. They were all excellent, and the time was thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the Convention.

Friday, the third day, was the great day of the week; both Houses meeting as the Board of Missions. This plan of making the Missionary Work of the Church the first business of the Convention, will surely give to it a grand impetus. And the meeting was a glorious success. For five hours the Bishops and Deputies listened with rapt attention to the accounts of our Missionary Bishops, their work and needs; and never before, I think, in the same time, have words of such eloquence and wisdom been heard upon this theme. Well may the Church be proud of her missionaries, led on by such men; and confidently may she entrust her resources to their administration. There was no tone of dispondency, no appearance of complaint. They spoke like the true veterans that they were, just from the battle-field. They told of the conflict, and asked for more men, and more means to enable them to carry it on. Every speaker was profoundly in earnest, and carried the great audience along, with unflagging interest. The Bishops who spoke were as follows: Clarkson, of Nebraska; Tuttle, of Montana; Morris, of Oregon; Whitaker, of Nevada; Hare, of Niobrara; Spalding, of Colorado; Elliott, of Western Texas; Garret, of Northern Texas: Penick of Africa.

The space allowed for this Report, will not suffice for a summary of their remarks. Bishop Elliott's was the most popular speech of the day; and I cannot forbear giving the closing passage.

"One clergyman wrote me," said the Bishop of Western Texas, "asking me if I had any more encouraging fields for work," And the Bishop said this with such a perfectly serious face, but with such a delicious tone of sarcasm, that the Deputies burst into laughter, and they laughed all the harder as Bishop Elliott went on. "Encouraging field! No I haven't got any encouraging field. In my district the work is all very discouraging. I don't want anybody to come out and help me, who expects to find that some one else has been there before, and done all the discouraging work, and left only the encouraging for him to do. Such a sweet young man wants to stay away. He wants to be provided with a snug little parish, with a cosey little parsonage, and have the ladies work embroidered slippers

Saturday morning was mostly occupied with routine business; the House adjourning at 1 o'clock. The papers relating to the Federate Council of Illinois were laid before the House by Mrs. Judd, and referred to the proper Committee. A Resolution was introduced, relating to a Bishop for the colored people, and their more complete organization. A special Committee was appointed, to report upon the expediency of real's Gods, it became the instrument of History and Indiana. HOBACE W. SMITH.

—A foreign correspondent, writing of the recent German review, says—that while passing along the ranks, he noticed that many seemingly trivial advantages were taken with the utmost eagerness by the troops. For instance, a trench had been thrown up in a cabbage field in front of the village. Each soldier, as he entered the trench, took care to pluck a cabbage leaf to lay under his rifle as he fired at the enemy, the ground being thoroughly soaked by the rain. Petty precautions of this sort show the thorough organization of the German army.

TWENTY-SECOND SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY. 1 Samuel IV. 10-I8.

Eli, the high priest and judge, was a descendant of Aaron, through Ithamar, the youngest of his surviving sons. (Lev. x: 12). How this office of High Priest came to be possessed by the younger branch of the house of Aaron we are not informed; though there is reason to suppose that its doing so was sanctioned by God. (1 Samuel 11:30). As the history makes no mention of any high priest of the line of Ithamar, before Eli, he is believed to have been the first 26). The office then returned to the family of the elder son of Aaron—Eleazer, in the person of Zadok (1 Kings II: 35).

The return of the high priest-hood to the family of the elder branch, was one part of the punishment denounced against Eli, during his punishment denounced against Eil, during his life time, for his culpable negligence in content-ing himself with mere verbal reprimand (1 Sam-uel II: 22), instead of active parental and judi-cial restraint, when his sons, by their rapacity and licentiousness, profaned the priesthood, and brought the rights of religion into abhorrence mong the people.

Another part of the same sentence appears to have been taking effect, in the reign of David; so that "there were more chief men found of the sons of Eleazer, than of the sons of Ithamar. The prominent fault of Eli, was his overweening regard for his children. His weak affection ing regard for his children. His weak affection for them, hindered his appreciation of their sin, and blinded him to the blasphemous and sacreligious indignity offered to the majesty of God, through their offence.

This evil was not confined to the time and person of Eli. It has recurred at different periods in the Church; the history of the Western Church is full of this sin. It is repeated, whereever the service of God is subordinated to parental or fittal affection.

Notwithstanding this blemish, the character of Notwithstanding this blemish, the character of Eli is marked by eminent piety; as shown by his meek submission to the divine judgment, and his supreme regard for the Ark of God.

Eli was not only High Priest; he was also one of the Judges. His seems to be the only instance, when the two offices were held by the same person. He is said to have judged Israel 10 years. He died at the egg of 98 years, over. bol of God's presence, had been taken by the Philistines, and that his two sons were dead. "On the evening of that day, there rushed through the vale of Shiloh, a youth from the camp, one of the tribe of Benjamin. His clothes torn asunder, and his hair sprinkled with dust, as the two Oriental signs of grief and dismay. A loud wail, like that which, on the announcement of any great calamity, runs through all Eastern towns, rang through the streets of the expectant city. The aged High Priest was sitting in his usual place, in the gateway of the Sanctuary. His ear caught the cry—He asked the tidings—He was told of the defeat of the army—He was told of the death of his two sons—He was told of the capture of the Ark of God. It was this last tidings, "when mention was made of the Ark of God," that broke the old man's heart... He fell from his seat; and in falling died. (Stanley's "Jewish Church.")

The events leading to this catastrophe seem The events leading to this catastrophe seem to have been as follows: At the death of Samson, the war between the Israelites and the Philistines had broken out anew. A bloody battle was fought at Aphek, in the northern part of Judah, in which the Israelites were totally defeated; and, in their desperation, they thought of the means of conquest which had been irrejectible under the discretion of Israelites. sistible under the direction of Joshua. Judah not only sought military aid from her rival Ephraim, but also the religious aid which could only be given by the High Priest, as the guardiau of the Sanctuary and of the Ark, the sacred national Treasure. Of Israel fell, and the Ark of God was taken. We may learn, from this history, that men like Eli, humble, sincere, religious, may, by yielding to mere human affections and desires, prove disloyal to their trust; and, in consequence, bring evil upon themselves and others.

Eli's amply witnessed regard for the honor of God and the interests of religious does not mitigate the punishment for his sin and negligence. It is evident that God will permit the triumph of the avowed enemies of the Faith, rather than the hypocrisies of its pretended friends. In the present evil days, it is well to remember this, and to refer the triumph of ungodliness to its

DEAR SIR:—enclosed please find P. O. order for $2.50, for which, please send to my address one Electro Magnetic Pad and two Plasters.

If you remember, I sent for one of your two dollar Pads on the first of August. It was for my daughter—eleven years of age. Her system seemed in a bad condition, the digestion was poor, causing derangement of the stomach—with failing appetite and strength and consequently lost her color, and a wasting of flesh. For almost a year her eyes had troubled her; when she took cold they became much inflamed, and at the time I put the Pad on her they were far from being well, although she had been under treatment for them. Since that time a gradual improvement in every respect has taken place, her eyes are entirely well and to-day she is rosy, healthful and happy, the Pad has done wonders for her and as I am so well convinced of its merits will try one for myself. Yours truly,

MRS. KATE MITCHELL.
